San Antonio Development Agency Records, 1956-2007

DATES:

1956-2007

QUANTITY:

Approximately 9,000 maps, 271 photographs, and 3 cu. ft. of printed material

LANGUAGE:

English

This collection was processed with the assistance of the National Historical Publications and Records Commission.

---

ADMINISTRATIVE HISTORY:

The San Antonio Development Agency was created following the passing of a city referendum in December, 1958. The agency's initial mission was to rejuvenate the city's under-developed and depressed neighborhoods, especially in or around the vicinity of downtown San Antonio, by applying for federal and state urban renewal grants, condemning land for private development, and initiating large-scale planning projects for specific neighborhoods within San Antonio. Since the 1960s, the agency has undertaken ten major urban renewal projects and studies, most notably the Civic Center Project, host of the HemisFair '68 World's Fair, the Convention Center complex, Market Square, and neighborhood revitalization projects in several San Antonio neighborhoods.

SCOPE AND CONTENT:

The San Antonio Development Agency Records consists of maps, architectural drawings, sketches, photographs, slides, and printed material documenting the activities of the agency primarily from the 1960s through the 1990s. Maps comprise the bulk of the records in the collection, used by the agency for planning and implementing various urban renewal projects. Particularly well-documented are projects related to neighborhood revitalization programs, such as those associated with areas around the Alamodome/Cherry St., New Braunfels corridor, Ft. Sam Houston gateway, Kenwood North, St. Paul Square, Vista Verde, Avenida Guadalupe, and various Colonias projects.

ARRANGEMENT:

The records are arranged mostly by project, though projects reoccur several times throughout the inventory. The records have not been formally arranged either chronologically or separated into archival series.

RESTRICTIONS:

Unrestricted access.

PREFERRED CITATION:

[Box #, Folder title], San Antonio Development Agency Records, 1956-2007, San Antonio Municipal Archives.
