Purpose of SA Tomorrow Film Showcase

The San Antonio's population is increasing, with families growing, and more people choosing to move to our region. Cultural, lifestyle and technological changes give San Antonio communities reasons to consider how they want to respond to the changing world around them, how they will be agents in crafting the future of the places they care about, how they will maintain place-based culture and heritage, and how our responsibility to care for individual places relates to our responsibility to future generations and the other neighborhoods and communities throughout San Antonio.

The City of San Antonio and community or professional associations host forums for San Antonians to share and learn perspectives on the future of the built environment of San Antonio and individual places in the city. Sometimes these involve presentations, local expert panels, facilitated discussions, and internet forums. However other media such as film, might be used to contribute unique perspectives and meaning to the broader discourse about the future of our city and to invite more people to participate.

The purpose of the SA Tomorrow Film Showcase is to provide an opportunity for San Antonians to share and learn about perspectives on the future of San Antonio's built environments and the future of places that are and will be important to San Antonians, through film. Film makers should consider highlighting present or future characteristics of a place that will make it valuable to San Antonians. The SA Tomorrow Film Showcase should inspire more San Antonians to be agents in crafting the built environment of their communities and our city.
